

MPNS Visual response tools

We have developed a series of visual response tools that can be incorporated into paper surveys, electronic delivery, or that enumerators can use to remind respondents of the response options and support responding.

There are three different tools available. There is a set of horizontal bars and set of basic circles. As a third option, AFRI-Pads have developed a set of clocks for use with the scale. What, if any, visual response option you choose to use will be based on your participants needs.

Another way to support respondents with answering the MPNS is with the use of hands and fingers. A close fist could indicate “never,” increasing the digits exposed until an open palm indicates “always.”
